

Erasmus+ Mobility Report: Experience in Portugal

My Erasmus+ mobility in Portugal became one of the most memorable chapters of my academic journey. Moving to a new country meant more than just studying abroad - it was about discovering a new culture, meeting people from around the world, and learning to see everyday life from a different perspective.

At my host university, I had the opportunity to explore new topics related to my field, especially Artificial Intelligence and its applications in games and physics in games. The courses encouraged critical thinking and practical work, helping me understand how theoretical knowledge can be applied in real projects.

Life in Portugal, however, was not only about classes and assignments. One of the most special parts of the experience was the ocean. Being able to visit the Atlantic coast, walk along the beaches, and watch sunsets by the water created a very inspiring atmosphere and made everyday life feel unique.

During my mobility, I also had the opportunity to visit the island of Madeira. Its breathtaking landscapes, green mountains, and views of the Atlantic Ocean made the trip unforgettable. Experiencing such places helped me better understand the natural beauty and diversity of Portugal.

Erasmus+ also allowed me to meet students from many different countries. Through studying together, sharing cultural experiences, and traveling, we exchanged ideas and perspectives. These international friendships became one of the most valuable parts of the experience.

Overall, my Erasmus+ mobility helped me grow not only as a student but also as a person. It strengthened my independence, adaptability, and confidence in an international environment. I am very grateful for this opportunity and would highly recommend the Erasmus+ program to other students who want to broaden their horizons both academically and personally.
